PARNELL DEAD
Rheumatism Increased by a Sudden Chill.

The Sad Event was Totally Unexpected by Friends.

Watched Over by His Wife and Dying in Her Arms.

His Mother's Grief—Supporters of the Deceased Statesman Nonplussed—Meeting of His Followers Called in Dublin.

By Telegram to The Times.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—(By Cable and Associated Press.) Great Britain and Ireland were startled this morning by an utterly unexpected announcement.

Charles Stewart Parnell, the noted Irish leader died suddenly yesterday evening in Brighton.

It had been known that Parnell had not enjoyed the best of health for years and it had been noticed and widely commented upon that since the O'Shea divorce developments and political trouble came upon him the great Irish member of Parliament had grown thinner, that he was perceptibly aged in appearance, but nobody expected to hear of his death, and no inkling as to his illness had reached the newspapers.

Only at a late hour has it been possible to obtain details in regard to his death. He died at his home in Walsingham Terrace, Brighton, at 11:30 yesterday evening. His death is said to have been indirectly due to a chill caught last week, which at first was not regarded as serious. Parnell, however, grew worse, and a physician was called grew weaker. Several hours before his death he became unconscious and remained until he died in intense agony.

Owing to the suddenness of the Irish leader's illness and the belief of his wife and physicians that he would recover, no friends or relations were present when he died. Only Mrs. Parnell and the physicians were there.

RESPECT FROM CARICATURES.
At a meeting of the National Federation, a McCarthyite organization, in this city, David Sheehy, member of Parliament for South Galway, submitted a motion to adjourn in consequence of the death of Parnell, which was adopted.

WHAT DAVID SAYS.
New York, Oct. 7.—Michael Davitt, who is in the city on his way to Ireland, expressed himself as follows: "My feeling about Parnell now is one of unmitigated sorrow at his sudden death. The occasion demands the expression of deep regret that he should have been cut off at a comparatively early age. We should remember only the good work which he performed for Ireland in a career of usefulness and distinction for his country. His recent unhappy conduct will, I am sure, be forgotten by a grateful people as an episode in his political life which will not enter into the memory of Ireland, but by side with his great services. His death will put an end to the unhappy dissensions by which the Irish movement has been torn during the last twelve months."

A MOTHER'S GRIEF.
BOSTON, Oct. 7.—(N. Y. News of her son's death was made known to Mrs. Parnell by a reporter this morning. When the reporter was announced Mrs. Parnell evidently divined that he had some information relating to Parnell, for she exclaimed: "What has fallen my son?" Seeing the reporter hesitate, she said: "Is he ill?" He replied: "He has been shot, or did he shoot himself?" The reporter broke the news to her as gently as possible and when he had said that Parnell was dead the white-haired mother reeled backward and fell on the floor. "Oh my son! Oh my good little Charles! They have killed you!" she shrieked. Her grief was heart-rending. She was seized with hysterics and by turns laughed and wept.

"That viper!" she said, "he is recovered, pointing her long, bony finger at the house of her half brother Edward Stewart. "That viper over there kept me away from him. He began suit for $15,000 against me to dispossess me from my home and I spent my all defending him. When Charles wrote to me asking me whether I needed anything I told him that crops were bringing me in plenty of money. That cheered him and it pleased me to see, although I could not help crying. Oh, he was a good and dutiful son and never neglected me. Lies! lies! All lies, when they say he refused to provide for me. I say it's slander; foul slander!"

Then the old lady paced up and down the room, sobbing convulsively. "It is Michael Davitt and the Irish World that killed him!" she cried. "I knew this last trouble would be his death. And that viper!" she said, "he is recovered, pointing her long, bony finger at the house of her half brother Edward Stewart. "That viper over there kept me away from him. He began suit for $15,000 against me to dispossess me from my home and I spent my all defending him. When Charles wrote to me asking me whether I needed anything I told him that crops were bringing me in plenty of money. That cheered him and it pleased me to see, although I could not help crying. Oh, he was a good and dutiful son and never neglected me. Lies! lies! All lies, when they say he refused to provide for me. I say it's slander; foul slander!"

in, with the result that the patient was ordered to take to bed. This was Friday last, and from that time Parnell lost strength and finally succumbed. The exact nature of the disease is not known at present. From the day he took to his bed, however, the state of Parnell's health was such as to necessitate constant attention and the attendance of two physicians, but in spite of their incessant, untiring efforts to prolong or save his life, Parnell gradually sank lower, until he expired in the arms of Mrs. Parnell, who is utterly prostrated by the shock.

In this city particularly the news of Parnell's death came like a thunderbolt upon the clubs and political circles. Nobody was even aware that he was indisposed, consequently when it became known that the Irish leader was dead the first idea was that he had committed suicide. As the day wore on, however, it leaked out from statements of his intimate friends that Parnell had complained recently of not feeling so well as usual, but it was not thought by anybody that there was anything serious in the symptoms, though he was thinner and looking weary.

The last time Parnell appeared in public was at Creggs, Ireland, on September 27, when he delivered a long speech upon the attitude and alleged inconsistencies of Dillon and O'Brien. On that occasion Parnell said, speaking in defiance of the doctors, who had ordered him to keep his rooms.

Coupled with the announcement that Sir John Hennessy, member of Parliament for North Kilkenny, is also dead. Hennessy, it will be remembered, immediately after the exposure in the O'Shea divorce case contested the North Kilkenny election, backed by Parnell's opponents and defeated the Parnell candidate, Vincent, by 114 votes. This was a great—possibly the greatest—test of strength between the Parnellites and McCarthyites and the defeat of Scully no doubt counted for a great deal in the future series of disasters which befell the Irish leader.

While Parnell was speaking at Creggs it was noticed that he was very pale and in other respects not the same man he had been in the past. In addition he carried his left arm in a sling. He was suffering from rheumatism.

Telegrams from the principal towns of England and Ireland unite in reporting their views of the death of Parnell as a great sensation among his supporters on account of its suddenness. In Dublin his supporters are in a state of consternation. A meeting was hastily called as soon as the news of his death was known and decided that a great deal in the future series of disasters which befell the Irish leader.

Another account says that Parnell arrived home at Brighton from Ireland Thursday, complaining of suffering from a chill. On Friday he was unable to leave his bed. His regular physician was summoned. He considered Parnell's illness serious and sent for another physician, with whom he held a long consultation. This consultation was resumed Sunday when Parnell was in great pain and growing weaker every hour. His sickness was pronounced an attack of acute rheumatism. He was untiringly nursed by his wife, who hardly left his bedside from the moment his illness was pronounced serious.

Parnell did not seem to rally, but occupants of the house on Walsingham Terrace, where he died, expired.

The end, the later reports state, was one of intense agony for the sick man until the moment when he became unconscious, and evidently died without pain.

CHAMBERLAIN AND MCCARTHY INTERVIEWED.
Joseph Chamberlain, when interviewed regarding Parnell's death, said it might influence the government to go to the country on the present legislation, but added that it was more likely that the government would endeavor to pass an Irish government bill, with a fair prospect that it could be done if the opposition would adopt the same attitude toward the measure, but it would be, he thought, late in 1892 before the measure could become a law.

Justin McCarthy said it was impossible to forecast the political effect of the death of Parnell. He said, however, that he hoped it would lead to the complete reunion of all shades of opinion among Irishmen in general, and in the Irish parliamentary party in particular. Certainly, he said, it will not under the present of the movement for the self-government of Ireland. McCarthy believed that all the feeling of hostility to Parnell, or of hostility between individuals of the Irish parliamentary party, would be swallowed up in the feeling of genuine and universal regret which was experienced among Irishmen at the death of Parnell.

"Three weeks ago," Mr. McCarthy said, "we (Parnell and myself) had a long and friendly talk at my house in Chelsea and we mutually agreed to draw a part of the Paris fund to defray the expenses of registering which were incurred before the split in the party. Before the death of Parnell, however, I had concluded, in conclusion, 'I was a close friend of Parnell, whom I admired intensely. Parnell consulted me in regard to his lamentable manifesto and I used all efforts in endeavoring to prevent him from issuing it to the public. My idea in trying to prevent him from so doing was that the issuance of the manifesto would make his further leadership of the Irish party an utter impossibility.'"

It was evident that McCarthy and members of his party were affected at Parnell's death and that all feeling of animosity to the great Irish leader had sunk beneath the flood of sorrow caused by his sudden and untimely death.

Prominent Parnellites who have been interviewed upon the subject declare that it will not affect their position, and that they intend to continue in independent opposition to the party which has fought against their leader.

The Mail, commenting on the death, says: "Now the battle for home rule must be fought on its own merits. All the same every generous heart will lament the tragic career of the Irish Riend."

MRS. O'SHEA'S CHILDREN.
A news agency states that among his complicated private affairs, Parnell left unsettled the question of the custody of his wife's youngest children. "It is no secret," says the same authority, "that Mr. Parnell claimed to be the father of the two youngest children of Mrs. O'Shea."

LONDON, (N. Y. News.) Oct. 7.—The news of Parnell's death was received with many expressions of regret in this home of many prominent Irishmen and headquarters of the Irish National League of America. A special meeting of the local branch has been called to take up the question of the sadness of the blow to his relatives and immediate friends, that the death of Parnell at this time is a divine blessing to Ireland. All factions both in this country and Europe will come together and work as one man for the cause of Ireland.

"Parnell was a man of great mental endowment, but he was no orator or public advocate. His speeches were sometimes failures, but he was a shrewd and able leader, and at his best did great work for Ireland."

He was the coldest man I ever saw. He could not be moved by anything," said Rev. Dr. Stephenson, president of the Wesleyan Methodist Conference. "Parnell, in the judgment of many of us, has been dead for some time, but he still had sufficient influence to make difficulty by the division of Irish feeling. With him out of the way the Irish party will probably become more united and cannot fail to have powerful influence on the next election."

The Evening Star says: "He was the ablest of Irish politicians since Daniel O'Connell."

RUMORS OF SUICIDE.
LONDON, Oct. 7.—Early today a report that Parnell had died by his own hand spread far and wide. Among the persons whom it reached was Mr. Parnell. Tonight he requests that an emphatic denial be given to the rumors that her husband committed suicide. She states he had long suffered from rheumatism, which developed into a fever which killed him.

In an interview this evening James O'Kelly, member of Parliament for North Roscommon, said he called upon Mr. Parnell tonight and she admitted him to see the body of Parnell. O'Kelly declared that from the peaceful expression on the face of his late friend it was difficult to believe he was really dead. He could not state what was the cause of death. The aspect of the corpse, however, suggested that it had resulted from natural causes and had come without any violent pain.

ARCHBISHOP IRELAND.
ST. PAUL, (Minr.) Oct. 7.—When asked his opinion about Parnell and the effect of his death on the Irish cause, Archbishop Ireland said he could not talk as a bishop and might talk as a man but would not. He said that he was an American, not an Irishman nor an Irish-American.

NEW YORK PRESS COMMENT.
NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—The Herald says: "His prominent characteristics were indifference to odds and the tenacity which never loosened its grip. If ever Parliament sits in Dublin Parnell's portrait will hang on the wall as that of a thoroughgoing Irishman, who believed in his native land and did what he could to make it great."

The Sun says: "The shadow which darkened the last year of his life will be forgotten and his grateful country will remember only that Parnell must, above all other men, be credited with the imposing dimensions and unparalleled coherence of the Irish Parliamentary party, to which are due the achievements of the past and the assurance of triumph in the future."

The World says: "When the decree was pronounced in the divorce case O'Shea the Irish cause lost not only one of its greatest leaders, but one of the most conspicuous and prominent figures of our time."

The Tribune says: "Parnell was needed not only to revive and unite Ireland but also to convert Gladstone and English liberalism to home rule. His work is done; another year will witness its full fruition."

The Times says: "If he had been as capable of and power as he was of, Ireland could not be denied that the struggle, gaining it, Parnell would years ago have framed a positive programme, by making upon England such demands as England could reasonably be expected to grant. He never did anything of the kind nor showed any capacity for doing it."

THE ST. LOUIS PAPERS.
ST. LOUIS, Oct. 7.—The Globe-Democrat will say: "That the death of this man at this time should be, as it is, of moments benefit to his country, is a striking illustration of the irony of fate."

The Republican says: "The news will be received with regret, which will not be less keen because death is untimely, brought on prematurely by the burden of an ambition which, aimed at the supreme test, always seemed a noble one."

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 7.—The Courier-Journal will say editorially: "The death of Charles Stewart Parnell may well startle the world. No living man was more conspicuous than he, at the same time no one more picturesque and interesting. The death of Parnell will be a great loss to the Irish cause and to the world. The O'Shea affair was a dreadful enough, for it brought ruin with it, but the whole story has never been told, and let him that can be denied that the death of Parnell, instead of coming as an enemy, seems to have come as a friend and to the rescue of Ireland. It was the personality of Parnell that caused the breach and sustained a faction; that gave, there is nothing left to quarrel over."

HIS LUNGS AFFECTED ALSO.
LONDON, Oct. 7.—Parnell, it is now stated, suffered from congestion of the lungs besides rheumatism. He became unconscious at 7 o'clock last evening. After repeated recalling to sensibility he lapsed into final unconsciousness. His wife, who had borne up nobly in the past and then when all was over broke down utterly.

ACCUSING THE PRIESTS.
BELFAST, Oct. 7.—On receipt of the news of the death of Parnell at Belfast a placard with deep mourning borders was posted throughout the city. This was headed "Murdered," and underneath were the words "Is it true? Say, priests, is it true?"

SUBMITTING MANAGEMENT OF THE PARTY.
ST. LOUIS, Oct. 7.—Dr. Thomas O'Reilly of this city, who is a delegate to the Irish National League convention, is authority for the statement that the management of Irish affairs will in future be in the hands of a committee of safety, to consist of five Irish members of Parliament who will have full charge of the movement in the House of Commons and the guidance of affairs in Great Britain. This step has been definitely decided upon by the Parliamentary party, says Dr. O'Reilly, and has been privately made known to leaders of the Irish movement in this country. It was known at the Chicago convention but not made public for obvious reasons.

WHAT PATRICK FORD SAYS.
NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Patrick Ford, editor of the Irish World, says: "Significantly connected are the sudden deaths of Parnell, Balgavane, Boulanger and Parnell. These three men occupied unique positions in their respective countries. Each was a dictator in his way. Parnell was unmistakably one, and his death will unify the parliamentary faction. No longer will there be a man more powerful in Irish affairs."

DEMONSTRATING THE DEAD.
NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—A cable states that the Dublin Catholic, the official organ of the Catholic hierarchy, will print today a leader written by Archbishop Walsh. The prelate boldly follows Parnell. He says: "Parnell's death is one of those events which remind the world of God. So far as known Parnell died unrepentant of his offense against God and country. He died a champion and a tool of faction, steeped in traitorism to his very lips. By the grave now open charity can scarcely find a place. Such tears as are shed must be for the memory of what he had once been. The name of Parnell and the story of Ireland's destinies are forever linked. The record of his service must always live. It is a pity that it must be read through a tangled web, woven in his later days of prejudice and falsehood. Parnell is dead. It is impossible to say how far Parnell's name may yet be used as a rallying cry for treachery. The weeds which grow on the grave of the dead cause are noxious and rank, but there is no cause to fear that those which spring from the tomb of Parnell will be able to thwart the freedom of Ireland. Her feet are strong enough to tread down the unholy growth."

To Catholics the close of Parnell's career is one of terrible significance. Death has come in the home of sin. His last glimpse of this world was unhallowed by the consolations of religion, his last memory linked forever with hers, whose presence seems to forbid the thought of repentance. He has passed into eternity without a sign of sorrow for the insult offered morality, for his offense against the law resting at the base of society, for his revolt against his native land, and against the anointed prelates and ministers of God's church."

The Paris correspondent of the London Times says that a military convention between France and Russia has existed for fifteen months.

ONE WIFE TOO MANY.

Cause of an ex-Railroad Man's Sudden Flight.

Why "Butch" Starr Did Not Remain in Los Angeles.

One Family in Oakland and Another in This City.

Father-in-law No. 1 Put in an Appearance, When "Butch" Discovered He Had Urgent Business Elsewhere.

Charles, or "Butch" Starr, the proprietor of the Star meat market on San Fernando street, opposite the old Southern Pacific depot, has been missing since the 20th day of last month, and his friends are of the opinion that he will never come back.

The incident which led up to his sudden, and for a time mysterious, going, savors of the romantic to a considerable extent, and proves that a man should not take unto himself more than one wife at a time, even in this glorious climate.

Eight years ago "Butch" was one of the handsomest and most popular conductors in the employ of the Southern Pacific Company. He ran out of Oakland, where his wife and three children lived. He seemed to think the world and all of them, and the neighbors looked on "Butch" and Mrs. "Butch" as the happiest couple in all Oakland, but there was a skeleton in the closet and one fine morning "Butch" suddenly and most mysteriously disappeared and for months his wife knew not his whereabouts.

Sympathy was piled on her by the whole town, as is always the case, and she never enlightened the public as to what part she took in the separation, although the young conductor's friends stated on every chance that "Butch" was not alone to blame.

However that may be, the dashing conductor paid no further attention to his Oakland wife and children, and he was not again heard from until he turned up in Tucson, Ariz., where he succeeded in getting another situation with the Southern Pacific, and he was soon running as conductor between Tucson and Yuma.

He remained in Tucson until about a year ago, and during his residence there he married again, and as he was unable to secure a divorce from his first wife, and she was too cruel to help him out, he had to fly very low or stand trial for bigamy. How much of his story was known to his second wife cannot be learned, but it is probable, from his subsequent acts, that he kept his secret to himself, for she bore him two children and will soon become the mother of a third.

About a year ago "Butch" decided to move to Los Angeles and go into business for himself. He and another railroad man named Biglow joined hands and opened the above-mentioned shop. As both men are very popular among the railroad men, they soon built up a good business and were making money hand over fist when Biglow became dissatisfied and sold out to Starr.

This was several months ago, and up to the 20th of last month Starr seemed to be doing a roaring business. On this particular day "Butch" was seated in front of his shop talking to a friend, when a carriage drove up and a portly old gentleman alighted. Before he could reach the sidewalk "Butch" bolted through the door, and as he fairly flew through the shop he yelled to his hired assistant:

"Good-bye, Jack, and if any one asks for me tell them I have been away two months," and he dashed through the back door and has not been seen since about the place.

The portly old man entered the shop and gruffly inquired for Mr. Starr. Starr's assistant was evidently much attached to him, for he most successfully put the old man of the track and convinced him that "Butch" had not been in the shop for two months, for he left and so far as is known he has not again been heard from.

Those who saw "Butch" leave the shop say he was the worst scared man that ever shuffled shoe dust in that section of the city. As soon as he cleared the back yard he got down to business and did not stop running until he put himself and Los Angeles city limits at a safe distance from each other.

Before the old man left the shop he made himself known as the father of "Butch's" first wife, and from the manner in which he talked he evidently came down for business, and had he and "Butch" come together, there is no telling what the result would have been.

It is not known whether "Butch" visited his second wife or not, for she has refused to converse on the subject, but it is certain that he left this city as soon as possible, and she still remains at their home on the East Side.

The father-in-law returned to San Francisco at once, and as no steps have been taken to arrest "Butch" on a charge of bigamy, it is believed that he and his daughter have decided, for the time being at least, to do nothing; but they are after his scalp, or the old man never would have come all the way down here to look him up.

POLICE BUSINESS.

Vigorous Protest Against "Crimes" on New High Street—Saloon License.

The Police Commissioners met in the Mayor's office yesterday afternoon, with Commissioner Snyder presiding and Commissioners Bryson and Dexter present. Chief Glass was also in attendance.

The monthly report of the Chief, as heretofore published, was read and placed on file.

The application of Kleckner & Purvis for the transfer of the saloon license of F. C. Purvis, No. 359 North Main street, being in regular form, was granted.

The application of Emil Schoenker for a saloon license for No. 426 North Main street, was referred to the Chief for investigation, there being some question as to the transfer being straight, and several protests being filed.

T. D. McLaughlin was sworn in as a special officer for service at the San Fernando-street depot, on the application of the railroad company.

The usual demands were presented and approved. Chief Glass reported the death of Officer Chase, mention of which was entered on the minutes, and on motion of Commissioner Bryson the condolence of the commission was extended to the widow of the deceased.

Mayor Hazard entered at this time, when the commission went into committee of the whole and adjourned to the public office, when a large delegation of citizens were given a hearing to lay their grievances before the board, the principal one of which was the presence of low prostitutes on New High street. Mr. Gould, on behalf of the property-owners and residents, addressed the board at length, explaining the situation. He said that the residents of a large section were greatly inconvenienced by this nuisance, and that women and children were compelled to go a long distance out of their way to escape passing through this section. New High street is now graded and paved, and he thought the people had stood the nuisance long enough, and they should now have relief.

Mayor Hazard asked the gentleman to suggest some remedy, when Mr. Gould stated that he thought the strict enforcement of the law regarding soliciting would help matters, and that if more officers were put in that section, the evil could be eradicated.

The members of the commission thought that if the people would follow up the matter closely, the police force would co-operate with them. They thought these people should be run out for the protection of respectable people living in the vicinity; the only question is a practicable way of accomplishing the result desired.

Chief Glass stated that he is perfectly willing to do everything in his power to assist the people in removing this obnoxious element. He had no right to instruct his officers to remove a man's name, or to prevent a man from entering a house of prostitution if he desired to go in.

After a general discussion it was agreed that steps will at once be taken to remove the objectionable element, and the law is to be rigorously enforced until all the prostitutes are removed from the street. The citizens stated that they will co-operate with the officers, and a vigorous warfare will be waged until the evil is done away with. The board then adjourned.

Pure cream of tartar is expensive, a little saved on every can means enormous profits; dishonest makers of baking powder take out part of the "cream," add ammonia to make up the strength, cry it "absolutely pure," others take out all the cream, use alum, sell it cheap, and hope the law won't force them to print the ingredients.

The leavening power of Cleveland's Baking Powder comes from cream of tartar with soda, nothing else; that is why Cleveland's is perfectly wholesome, leavens most, and leavens best.

HOME HAPPENINGS.

The Ways of American Jurors are Past Finding Out.

An Eastern Agriculturist Jots Down His Impressions.

Co. B's Entertainment at the Opera-house Tonight.

Successful Debut of the Choral Society—Various Locals of Interest—Brethren and Personal Mention.

The result of the toll road case, which occupied Justice Gardner's attention on Tuesday night, after a sitting of two and a half hours, during which a crowd of interested parties remained about the city hall, and amused themselves the best they could, a decision was handed to Justice Gardner stating that the jurors had agreed to disagree. It was then learned—or rather it was thought—that the jury stood for conviction and three for acquittal. It was this verdict that caused the discussion yesterday. There was no attempt made in the case to deny that the defendant had traveled on the new toll road, and that he refused to pay toll. This fact was proven beyond a shadow of a doubt, as all the jurors admitted, and this was the sole offense alleged in the complaint. It is a mystery to most people how anything but a unanimous verdict of conviction could have been rendered. Three of the jurors, however, seem imbued with the idea that the toll road company was on trial for not erecting mile posts, toll gates, filing certificates of completion, and keeping a record of the tolls. For this reason they declared the defendant innocent of the offense charged, thus asserting that all the public is free to travel over the toll road without money and without price, and that the defendant had been cruelly persecuted and did not want to pay toll. A lot of testimony was ruled out, but the decisions and charges of the judge, contrary to usual custom, apparently cut no figure in the case.

A new trial will be held at an early date.

HE APPRECIATES THIS COUNTRY.

A lately arrived agriculturist from the East sends the following interesting communication for publication:

"The Midsummer edition of THE TIMES has been largely instrumental in conveying to the minds of our people the fact that California's immense agricultural resources, to say nothing of her annual fruit crop, which exceeds that of any other State in the Union. Western competition has revolutionized agriculture in most of the Eastern States in the last few years. Wheat, dressed beef from cattle grazed on Government lands free of charge, cattle, horses and swine, all find a ready market in the East at prices that would be considered exorbitant in California. The scenery in this region at present is a rare treat. From a high altitude view of cultivated landscape can be seen, which cannot be surpassed in America, or the world. The eye takes in at once a panorama of grain-fields, from which the gleaners have already gathered their fruits, corn-fields, pastures, orchards and vineyards, as contained in a succession of terraces, while the background is made up of beautiful residences, handsome public buildings and business houses, and its wide and shaded thoroughfares, presents to the beholder as fair a city as can be found anywhere."

"There is a golden haze in the atmosphere, while fresh breezes from the sea become cooler and more invigorating as the winter season approaches. Truly can the people of Pasadena and the surrounding country be proud of their sunny clime. The fairest bride that ever stood at the altar, decked in the choicest raiment, could not excel the loveliness of this land. Providence has bestowed upon this State in this season and its cornucopia of rich treasures are again being poured into the laps of the husbandmen. The golden State is named, for it is indeed the 'Crown of the Valley'—and of the State. Long may it continue in the van of other towns and sections of the West, and the future be fruitful, the generous, the mighty West!"

"RECENT ARRIVAL."

CO. B'S ENTERTAINMENT.

The advance sale of seats has been very satisfactory, and a large audience is expected to be given tonight at the opera-house by local talent for the benefit of Co. B. The entertainment will open with what is described as a "Military Triumphant" entitled "The Crown of the Valley," with the following cast: "Jenny," Carr Riggs; "Peter," Ben Riggs; "Matthew," Arthur Behr; "John," Arthur Tomney. A four-act opera, entitled "The Blue Monarch," which will be given by the following cast:

Little Bo-Peep, the chosen queen, Allie Lisk; Blue-Boy, the chosen king, Carr Riggs; Lady Lark, lady of the castle, Katie Hall; Nellie, guest of the king, Ruby Riggs; Robin, lover of Lady Lark, Ben Riggs; Mistress Mary, waiting maid, Anna Dwyer; Silver Bird, the chosen queen, Carrie Hall; Cockle Shell, (Mistress Mary) Anna Dwyer; The City Girl, who is in love with the king, Jane, maid of all work, Clara Arthur; The City Girl, who is in love with the king, Jane, maid of all work, Clara Arthur; The City Girl, who is in love with the king, Jane, maid of all work, Clara Arthur.

The costumes will be especially handsome. Seats are on sale at Foster's.

A SUCCESSFUL OPENING.

The Pasadena Choral Society has already about seventy-five members. This number will soon be increased to a large number of persons have signified their intention of subscribing their names to the associate membership list, thus insuring a successful season.

The first rehearsal passed off successfully on Tuesday evening. The attendance was large and the new members on North Main and Oak avenue were much admired. The music of "The Holy City" was practiced in part and all present were delighted with the melodious cantata. Rehearsals will be held every Monday evening under Mr. Taylor's direction. Several well-known singers of Los Angeles have connected themselves with the society.

FIRE COMMISSIONERS.

Plans for Remodeling the Fire Alarm System—Routine Matters.

The regular weekly meeting of the Board of Fire Commissioners was held yesterday morning.

The Mayor's office yesterday morning, with Commissioners Stein, Brodick and Kuhns present. Chief Moore was also in attendance.

A communication was read from the City Clerk, transmitting the action of the City Council, recommending, on the part of the City and County, that connections be made and manholes be put in in Janja No. 1 and Janja Madre to furnish water for fire purposes, together with the motions ordered.

The fire alarm boxes at various points, all of which were referred to the Chief, were also discussed.

The same action was taken in the matter of the petition of property owners asking for better fire protection in the vicinity of Seventh and Mateo streets.

Chief Moore reported on the plan of putting in fire alarm boxes, as asked for by the Councilmen. These boxes, he said, would cost $125 each, and the total cost of the work would be $6350.

It would require 73 poles at $4 each, 16 miles of wire at $1200 a mile, 9 cells of gravity battery at $180 with fixtures for each.

This would necessitate changing the system into ten circuits, which would be $1500 additional. A new ten circuit automatic register would cost $1800; the street boxes would cost $1500, the entire $6350.

Instead of this plan the Chief recommended the districting of the outlying precincts and the putting in of 825 poles in District No. 1, the pole fixtures would cost $122.14, and three miles of wire and fixtures $108.30; instruments and fixtures, $147; total for district No. 1, $377.44.

District No. 2, 39 poles, $466; fixtures amounting in all to $172.75; 15 miles of wire, $1800; instruments, $147; total for district No. 2, $3835.52.

District No. 3, 14 poles, $56 and fixtures amounting in all to $172.75; 15 miles of wire, $1800; instruments, $147; total for district No. 3, $3835.52.

District No. 4, 83 poles, $832; fixtures, $791.30; 10 miles of wire, $1200; fixtures, $151.8; instruments, $174.25; total, $3100.35.

The cost of poles and wire is included in the totals of the fixtures.

The total cost of this system would be $31115.50.

Chief Moore and Commissioner Kuhns were appointed a committee to examine into the matter and report to the Council, after which the board adjourned.

HARRIS'S MONEY.

The Sensational Field-Shorb Suit Resumed.

Mrs. Shorb Tells about the Dead Man's Last Illness.

How He Came to Give Her the Certificates of Deposit.

Ed Baker and John C. Hoy Plead Not Guilty to Forgery—Young Pearley Let Off with a Light Sentence.

The trial of the sensational case of Public Administrator Field against Dr. and Mrs. A. S. Shorb, a suit to compel defendants to turn over to the heirs of Daniel J. Harris, deceased, some $27,000, which they claim was given to them by Harris during his last illness, was resumed before Judge Van Dyke and a jury in Department Four yesterday morning, and occupied their undivided attention all day. The courtroom was crowded with spectators, among whom were several ladies, who evinced a great deal of interest in the proceedings.

After the usual preliminaries had been disposed of, Hon. S. M. White, of the court for the defense, moved the court to strike out that part of J. Hunsicker's testimony which had referred to Harris's condition of mind prior to March and April of 1890. After hearing argument upon the motion, Judge Van Dyke granted it as to certain statements made by the witness.

Similar motions were then made as to those parts of the testimony of the witnesses Anderson and Davis, concerning what Harris had told them about a pending epidemic that was to visit Los Angeles and destroy 30,000 people; but both were denied by the court, as was also a motion to strike out the answers of the expert physicians to the hypothetical questions asked by the plaintiff's counsel.

Officer M. V. Wright of the Humane Society was then called to the stand for the defense, and stated that some time in 1890, he was left at the residence of the police station that Harris's horse was being treated in an inhuman manner. He went out to Harris's place, but saw no evidence that the horse was starving, except that the animal was in a day he told her that he was starving. The witness expressed it as his opinion that a former nurse of Harris had "put up a job" about the horse.

Upon cross-examination the witness said that he did not see anything offensive about Harris's condition, and did not believe he was filthy when he saw him.

Dr. S. S. Salisbury testified to having attended Harris during the temporary absence of Dr. Shorb, who was over at Catalina. In his opinion, Harris was sane, but he admitted that his patient was "not so clean as he might have been," upon cross-examination.

Mrs. Mary A. Foreman was briefly examined as to the length of time Dr. Shorb remained on the island, and Mrs. Mary L. Shorb, one of the defendants, was then called to the witness stand. She testified at considerable length to the intimacy which existed between the deceased, Harris, and herself and husband, and to the many little services she performed for the sick man during his last illness, such as eradicating bedbugs, and making up his bed for him.

As for the money, she stated that Harris gave her certificates of deposit for various sums at different times. One he told her that he wanted to make her a present, as she had done more for him than he could have expected, and asked her to bring down a certificate of deposit for $25,000. She did so, and then he told her to make out a check for the amount, payable to herself, which he then signed. The same thing occurred when she took him the certificate of deposit for $12,888.25 at his request, and he also made her another present of $100 in a similar manner. He marked on these occasions that he had a right to do what he wanted with his own money.

Mrs. Shorb denied emphatically that Harris was unclean in his habits, and stated positively that he disliked dirt very much, and was always glad when she changed and made up his bed for him.

The witness was still upon the stand when court adjourned for the day, and she will probably be cross-examined at some length today.

THE "MORRIS M. GREEN" FORGERY. In Department One, yesterday, Edward L. Baker, the real estate man charged with complicity in the forgery of Morris M. Green's name to a $4000 mortgage, appeared before Judge Smith to plead. His attorney, Z. G. Peck, Esq., moved the court to set aside the information on the ground that the client had not been legally committed by a magistrate before it was filed, the defendant filing an affidavit in support thereof. After hearing argument upon the motion, the court denied it, whereupon the defendant excepted and presented a demurrer on the ground that the information did not substantially conform to the requirements of sections 950, 951 and 952 of the Penal Code. This was also disallowed by the court, to which ruling defendant again excepted. Baker was then called upon to plead, and his plea of not guilty having been entered the case was set down for trial on November 9 next.

John C. Hoy appeared before Judge McKinley in Department Six yesterday upon the same charge. His counsel, W. R. Bacon, Esq., presented a demurrer to the information on the grounds: First, that the court had no jurisdiction to try the case; second, that the court had no jurisdiction over the offense charged in the information; third, that the information charged more than one offense; fourth, that the facts stated therein did not constitute a public offense. After hearing argument thereon, the court disallowed the demurrer, to which ruling the defendant excepted; and Hoy's plea of not guilty having been duly entered, the case was set for trial on November 2, next.

A LIGHT SENTENCE. In Department Three, yesterday, C. M. Pearley, the youth charged with having, on July 23 last, furnished and delivered a false and forged message to Operator J. D. Waldo at the First-street depot, for the purpose of defrauding Conductor W. A. Moody and Messrs. Monaghan of Murphy of the Needles of $50, appeared before Judge McKinley, with his attorney, M. E. C. Munday, Esq., for trial. When the case was called, however, the defendant asked and obtained leave to substitute his plea of guilty for that of not guilty, whereupon he waived all further legal rights, and was sentenced to imprisonment in the County Jail for the term of six months.

Court Notes. In Department Two yesterday Judge Clark granted the motion of the defendant for a new trial in the damage suit of Mrs. C. A. Fox against the Southern Pacific company. This trial was tried for the first time in June, 1890, and resulted in a verdict for the defendant; but on November 30, of that year a new trial was granted, on motion of plaintiff, with the result that on May 5, last, a verdict for plaintiff for $8500 was returned.

Judge Clark yesterday rendered his decision in the case of E. J. Baldwin vs. John H. Temple, an action of ejectment for a small tract of land lying within the exterior boundaries of the Rancho la Merced, arising findings and judgment for the defendant in accordance with an opinion filed therein.

Judge Clark yesterday granted the petition of Mr. and Mrs. I. L. Clark, who reside at 507 1/2 North Main street, for leave to adopt the infant child of Mrs. Daisy Ann Bolton, whose husband recently deserted her.

In Department Three yesterday the case of the Security Savings Bank vs. J. W. Ellis, an action to foreclose a mortgage for $650, came up for hearing before Judge Wade, and resulted in judgment for plaintiff's prayer, by default.

In Department Five yesterday the trial of the case of the Land, Power and Reservoir Company against Saturnino Carrion and others, to condemn certain property at Covina for reservoir purposes, was resumed before Judge Shaw and a jury and occupied their undivided attention all day. The case will be taken up again this morning.

Clara Le Clair, alias Lillie Bailey, appeared before Judge McKinley yesterday with her attorney, J. Marion Brooks, Esq., to plead to the charge of grand larceny preferred against her by A. J. Monroy, who accused her of having on August 25 last, stolen $370 from him, which belonged to Abram Ruiz. The defendant presented a demurrer to the information on file against her on the usual statutory grounds, which, however, was disallowed by the court, after argument, the defendant excepting thereon. The woman then entered her plea of not guilty, and the case was set for trial on the 14th inst.

William Pablo, an Indian, who has for some time past been instrumental in the arrest of a number of people for selling liquor to Indians, was himself arrested upon that charge yesterday at San Bernardino. He was taken before United States Commissioner Van Dyke and after arraignment, placed under bond in the sum of $2500 to appear for examination on Saturday next.

New Suits. Among the documents filed with the County Clerk yesterday were the preliminary papers in the following new cases:

M. E. Frankel vs. E. D. Gibson, Sheriff; suit on claim and delivery and recovery of possession of 441 pounds of cauliflower seed and 398 pounds of cabbage seed, or for $1721, the value thereof, and for $500 damages for the alleged illegal detention thereof.

R. J. Northam vs. Mrs. M. D. Morrison et al.; suit to recover possession of the Hotel Norwood on the corner of Sixth and Hill streets, to annul a lease therefor, and to obtain judgment for $165 alleged to be due for rent thereon.

A. C. Shafer et al. vs. Harry Fowler et al.; suit to foreclose a vendor's lien on a lot in the Montague tract, upon which there is alleged to be due and unpaid the sum of $838.33.

Mrs. Mary A. Nemever filed a petition for letters of administration to the estate of Henry Niereer, deceased, who died on September 30 last, leaving real and personal property valued at $20,000.

Jonas J. Thornton has commenced suit for a divorce from his wife, Jane Thornton.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

VERA AVA.

The Mysterious Female Formerly Lived in Los Angeles.

A special dispatch from Cincinnati to the San Francisco Examiner says: The Chief of Police of San Francisco has written Chief Dietzsch a letter concerning the Vera Ava mystery. He has seen her picture and says that she is the same woman who has worked the western coast as a spiritualist and massage doctor under the name of Mme. Isabel. She left Los Angeles in June, at which time she was so destitute that a collection was raised for her among the Spiritualists of that city. The Chief says she is a good talker, somewhat erratic and incoherent at times.
